LANGUE VIVANTE I*Epreuve du 1<sup>er</sup> groupe*ANGLAIS*Suicide rate rises among young people

5 The World Health Organization estimates that every 40 seconds, someone in the world ends their life. It is estimated that the method used for 20 per cent of global suicides is pesticide self-poisoning, most of which occur in rural agricultural areas in low- and middle-income countries. Other common methods of suicide are hanging and firearms. It's often difficult to imagine what led a friend, family member, or celebrity to commit suicide. There may be no warning signs, and you may wonder what clues you might have missed. Often, many factors combine to lead to a decision to commit suicide. It is often an act made during a storm of strong emotions and life stresses rather than after careful consideration.

10 While there are many factors which can influence a person's decision to commit suicide, the most common one is that the person has severe depression. A person is feeling great emotional pain but isn't able to see any way to relieve that pain other than ending her own life. Other mental illnesses besides depression can also play a role in suicide. For example, people with schizophrenia or other illnesses that produce psychosis might be hearing voices which command them to kill themselves. Drugs and alcohol can also influence a person who is feeling suicidal, making her more impulsive and likely to act upon her urges than she would be while sober. Use of drugs and alcohol can contribute to the other reasons why people commit suicide, such as the loss of jobs and relationships. As well, the rates of substance and alcohol abuse are higher among people with depression and other psychological disorders.

20 A person who has had a traumatic experience, including childhood sexual abuse, rape, physical abuse, or war trauma, is at a greater risk for suicide, even many years after the trauma. People who decide to commit suicide often state that their loved ones or the world, in general, would be better off without them. The person sees herself as a burden to others or feels worthless. A person can become socially isolated for many reasons, including losing friends or a spouse, physical or cerebral illness, social anxiety, retirement, or due to a move to a new location. This can lead to loneliness and other risk factors such as depression and substance abuse.
